SOLUTIONS TO TRADE IMBALANCES AIN'T IMPOSSIBLE

Elsewhere on this page you will find a story about a meeting in Brisbane, Australia involving United States, Australian, New Zealand and Canadian cattlemen. This happening took place last week and received perfume coverage at best and was largely ignored by most of our news media. Now we will be the first to recognize that what is considered news is largely up to the reporters and editors and public and like beauty is confined to the eyes of the beholders.

The coverage, or lack of it, should serve as a signal to you and me as to just what we in the livestock and cattle business have to do in order to get the attention of the Govmint and the public at large. The cow business ain't the hottest trot around with huge numbers of people.

Trade Barriers, Quotas on Beef By The European Common Market, Japan Result in Unfair Trade

Washington, Feb. 20 - Cattlemen from the U.S. and three other beef exporting countries have agreed on a plan to open and expand markets for beef exports.

Jack Dahl, president of the National Cattlemen's Assn., reported on the plan following a meeting in Brisbane, Australia, of the leaders of cattlemen's associations in the U.S., Canada, Australia and New Zealand. Dahl and Burton Eller, NCA vice president for government affairs, represented the U.S. in discussions of ways in which producers from the four countries could jointly work for greater access to the Japanese, European and other beef markets.

International Beef Meeting Slams Protectionism, Singles Out Japan

Sydney (KRF) - Representatives of four leading beef producing countries voiced support for a seven-point proposal by the Australian government to halt protectionist trade policies, and singled out Japan for special criticism.

The proposal, announced earlier this year by prime minister Bob Hawke at Davos, Switzerland, calls for a moratorium on agricultural subsidies and far-reaching reform of domestic tariff support policies.

In a joint communique released the last day of a 2-day meeting at Sorbus Paradise near Brisbane, representatives from Australia, New Zealand, Canada and the U.S. also criticized Japanese restrictions on beef imports.

All countries agreed it was unfair for Japan, a country reliant on international trade and currently experiencing a record trade surplus, to continue imposing tight quotas on beef imports, the communique said.

The representatives said they urged their governments to pressure Japan to liberalize its beef market. The communique said. The four countries would also liaise prior to negotiations later this year on a new beef import agreement with Japan.

The meeting also condemned non-tariff barriers to international beef trade, and voiced concern over EEC plans to restrict beef imports on the basis of content of chemicals and veterinary products, it said.

The communique said countries which impose more restrictions on beef imports than those for their own cattle industries "were guilty of unwarranted non-tariff trade barriers."

It said the meeting also agreed that countries exporting beef to the U.S. contribute to the country's beef promotion efforts through payment of the import levy, equivalent to $1 U.S. dollar per head.

The representatives reaffirmed their support for USDA requirements for a suitable global standard for judging entering the U.S.

Remember when alligators were an endangered species? Now they are numerous that in Villa Pate, Louisiana, there is a commercial farm raising and selling alligator meat to super markets. Soon they'll be in convenience stores. Management is looking for a suitable building site near a busy intersection in a swamp.

Gator meat is really good they say and comes in grades of Prime, Choice, and Hostile.

You may wonder how they raise gators in confinement. They put them in water-filled pens and feed them raw meat. The alligator farmers feed them carefully and avoid acting raw.

Of course, a lot of gators are still hunted wild. Instead of Crocodile Dundee killing crocs with a knife, the most legendary Cajun is Alligator Alfonso who prefers a broken beer bottle.

The processing plant butchers, skin and handles the by-products. The guys who work there are real alligator wrestlers. They say it's a tough job but they have this constant, strange compulsion to go out and buy a billiard.

All together, there are 14 alligator farms in Louisiana. There used to be 18 but the gators ate one.

They even have recipes for the meat. They usually start out with "Take a medium size pan and a 367 Magnum."

No joke, there are dishes called Bean Sprout and Gator Bake (one got caught in the garden). Gator Meatballs and Spaghetti (run over by a gator) and Le Cocodrie, which is French for H-E-L-P.

A Cajun cook told me that alligator meat is weird because if you cook it like red meat, it tastes like red meat. If you cook it like fish, it tastes like fish. I asked, "What if you cook it like water buffalo?" He replied, "Don't do it or it won't taste nothing like gator."

At cocktail parties, the latest rage is Alligator hors d'oeuvres. They put some small chunks in a used shrimp shell casing and call it gator on the half shell.

There is a difference between the pen-raised and the wild gator meat. The Cajuns say the difference is you try to eat the same ones. In the wild, it's the reverse.

Well, tame or wild, gators are making a comeback. A Cajun hunter told me that he recently came face to face with a giant alligator. "My whole life flashed before my eyes."

"Wow!" I said. "Did you kill him?" "Naw," he said, "I had a good time. It was an X-rated dash."

To complete my research, I asked this fearless hunter if he ever took a step back when facing a gator. "To tell you the truth," he said, "dat's de most dangerous ting you could done. You either step in a possum trap or fall on dee boat."

Simmental Bulls

Jim Blankenship thinks they may be the best thing that ever happened for South Texas crossbred cows.

"In this country a bull has got to be able to cover a lot of country, breed cows instead of fighting with the other bulls and sire good-doing, heavy-weaning, high-yielding calves. Simmental bulls are the answer for our Brahman cross cows."

Futures Talk

Week Ended Feb. 20

As traders look on the floor of the Exchange, price data is transmitted instantaneously to the world. In your newspaper in the business section, you will find yesterday's Futures price activity.

In most newspapers, price data is grouped under Futures headings such as "Livestock and Meat," "Grains and Oilseeds," "Financial," etc. Next to the name of each Futures contract is the abbreviation of the Exchange where that contract is traded. For example, next to Corn is CBOT which represents the Chicago Board of Trade.

Down the left hand column is the current month's being traded. Remember, Futures are traded in months because they are consumed, and thus, the contracts expire. To the right of the month is the day's opening price, highest price during the trading session, lowest price, and closing price. The closing price is called the "settlement" price and may be the average of a closing range. Generally, the last 30 seconds of trading is called "the closing," and frequently, the settlement price is the average of the highest and lowest price traded during the closing. To the right of the settlement price is generally the highest price at which the Futures contract has ever traded since the contract began and the lowest ever since the beginning trade. Next to that is the "Open Interest" which is the number of contracts that has to be liquidated before the Futures contract expires.

Below the price data, is the daily volume, or number of trades, and the total open interest of all months.

If you are in phase with the flow of the price, the markets will pay you a handsome dividend.

The flow is a short-term directional indicator while the trend is a long-term indicator. When a market is in an uptrend, the flow and the trend are up. As the market begins to top out, the flow will turn from up to neutral and then to down. As the market moves lower, it will eventually change the direction of the trend from up to down. A neutral market has a "floating" price with no direction. A neutral market is not a "sideways" pattern.

The flow and trend of March feeders remains up. A close below $68.10 will turn the flow down. The next resistance should be around $70.60.

The flow and trend of May feeders is up. A close below $63.80 will turn the flow down. The next resistance is around $68.85.

The trend and flow of June live cattle (fats) remains up. A close below $58.80 will turn the flow down. There is resistance between $62.45 and $62.75.

The trend of June hogs remains up, and the flow remains down. The major support appears to be around $43.00 with resistance around $47.80.

The trend and flow of July corn remains down. Support should be found around $1.50. A close above $1.75 would be required to change the flow to neutral.

May wheat has really been busy around during the past three weeks. The trend of the market remains up. The close at $2.81 1/2 on Feb. 20, the flow has moved from neutral to the up mode. I don't see resistance until we get to the closing high of $3.00.

The trend of March soybeans remains sideways. The boundaries of sideways pattern are $5.11 and $4.82 1/2. There is resistance around $5.00. A close below $4.82 1/2 will change the trend and the flow to down. There is some support around $4.60 but the air starts to get thin below that.

The trend and flow of July soybeans is down. There is support at $4.80 a close below $4.80 could take us to $4.65.

The flow and trend of June Treasury Bills remains down. The resistance is around $4.70. A close above $4.70 will turn both indicators to the up mode. Treasury Bill futures are traded at numbers that are the reciprocal of interest rates. As T-Bill futures move lower, interest rates are becoming higher.

Commodity Insight

Week Ending February 19

After watching the commodity markets collapse over the past several weeks, I'm reminded of a story about the Lewis and Clark Expedition's first encounter with a grizzly bear. It occurred during the spring of 1806 while the group was traveling up the Missouri River.

The group happened upon a single grizzly, shot it, and chased it into the river. The grizzly was mortally wounded but its enormous strength and endurance enabled it to swim the high, fast water and find refuge on a deserted gravel bar in mid-stream. It took nearly a half hour for the bear to die. During that half hour the grizzly roared and thrashed about and put up quite a fuss.

Later that night William Clark noted in his journal that the grizzly "was a very large and terrible looking animal, which we found very hard to kill." In the annals of American history few observations have been so accurate.

That was the Expedition's first encounter with a grizzly. As the Expedition traveled deeper into the unexplored west there would be more adventures with the hard to kill bear. With each encounter, fear and respect for the bear increased.

The analogy here is evident. Commodity traders in early 1987 have discovered that the market bear is "very large and terrible looking and very hard to kill." The message that traders have received over the past two weeks is that the bear is back and is roaring mad.

In early 1987, it seemed likely that the bulls would be in control of many markets. Talk of renewed inflation due to rising crude oil prices and a pick-up in the U.S. economy had the bears on the run. Fears of inflation were supported when the CRB Index rallied sharply into early February closing at its best level in months.

During the first six weeks of 1987, many commodities moved higher in price. The Dow Jones was the leader but it was followed quickly by cattle, wheat, soybean oil, oats, lumber, foreign currencies, silver, gold, hogs, pork bellies and crude oil.

The bears were being routed on nearly every exchange. Traders that were bulls were having a field day. Buying the break was much more profitable and enjoyable than selling the rallies. There was a growing belief that the bear, if not dead, was mortally wounded and stranded on a gravel bar.

The markets have been embroiled in an atmosphere of blind speculation. Fundamentals have taken a back seat to a bullish market psychology. Enthusiasm and greed will only support a market for so long. Those markets with poor fundamentals will eventually fall under their own weight. Markets with sound fundamentals will go higher. It's that simple.

Over the past two weeks, we have seen which markets have sound fundamentals and which markets do not. The bullish markets are divorcing themselves from the bearish markets. It is quite clear that the reckless enthusiasm that has infected the marketplace since early January, is beginning to wane.

In the next several months, cattle prices will remain firm while hogs grow weaker. Copper prices should assume a leadership role in the Fears of inflation were supported when the CRB Index rallied sharply into early February closing at its best level in months.

During the first six weeks of 1987, many commodities moved higher in price. The Dow Jones was the leader but it was followed quickly by cattle, wheat, soybean oil, oats, lumber, foreign currencies, silver, gold, hogs, pork bellies and crude oil.

The bears were being routed on nearly every exchange. Traders that were bulls were having a field day. Buying the break was much more profitable and enjoyable than selling the rallies. There was a growing belief that the bear, if not dead, was mortally wounded and stranded on a gravel bar.

The markets have been embroiled in an atmosphere of blind speculation. Fundamentals have taken a back seat to a bullish market psychology. Enthusiasm and greed will only support a market for so long. Those markets with poor fundamentals will eventually fall under their own weight. Markets with sound fundamentals will go higher. It's that simple.

Over the past two weeks, we have seen which markets have sound fundamentals and which markets do not. The bullish markets are divorcing themselves from the bearish markets. It is quite clear that the reckless enthusiasm that has infected the marketplace since early January, is beginning to wane.

In the next several months, cattle prices will remain firm while hogs grow weaker. Copper prices should assume a leadership role in the

AT ALTA VERDE INDUSTRIES

WE UNDERSTAND TEXAS CATTLE

We all know that if you're going to raise cattle in most parts of Texas you have to use a breed that can take the heat and walk quite a distance to water. But suddenly, we're hearing some people in the packing industry say that cattle able to do this don't fit their programs.

At Alta Verde, we take another viewpoint. To us, an animal is not unfit just because he has some ear, or hump, or Mexican influence, and we don't intend to dock anyone just because he raises cattle that can survive in hard country.

We have the facilities and know-how to help you take your cattle through the feedlot all the way to the packing plant, and since we carry out each phase of the operation ourselves, we can make you a good deal on the entire package.

So if someone starts telling you that your cattle are below par, call and let us give you a second opinion. After all, people do make mistakes.

National Grain Market Review

Wheat and feed grain markets moved mostly higher across the nation during the week ended Feb. 19. Farmers of hard red winter wheat and a little pick up in export trade firmed most prices. China and Mexico bought U.S. wheat in four quantities. A poor Argentina corn crop might provide U.S. traders withened on into Japanese and Korea corn markets. Brazil's improved soybean crop tended to depress U.S. soybean markets in spots. Weaker soybean oil markets were partially offset by soybean meal.

Wheat: What markets were supported by well regulated farmer selling, steady flour mill demand and expanding export demand. Kansas City no. 1 hard red winter wheat rose 1/4 cent to 2.45 1/2 but fell 51 cents compared with 1986 and dropped nearly 30 cents per bushel from the 1985 season. St. Louis no. 2 soft red winter wheat advanced 5 1/2 cents to 3.01 1/2, down 12 1/2 cents from 1986 and down 33 1/2 cents from 1985. Min.neapolis no. 1 dark northern spring 11% protein wheat rose 6 cents to 3.12 1/2 but fell 70 cents from 1986 and 117 1/2 cents from 1985. Port had no. 1 soft white wheat went up 2 1/4 cents to 3.05 3/4 but dropped 85 1/2 cents from 1986, and traded 76 cents below the 1985 season.

Corn: Yellow corn markets moved mixed all week but closed firmer on reports that a short Argentina corn crop might increase U.S. trade to Japan and Korea. Omaha no. 2 yellow corn closed steady to up 1 cent at 1.32 1/4 but dropped 28 cents from last year and fell 1.26-1.27 per bushel from 1985. White corn trade is dull and bids fell 30 cents at Kansas City as traders adjusted prices in line with recent sharp declines in yellow corn markets.

moved in wide price swings but closed stronger following the rally in yellow corn market. Demand broadened to domestic feeding area and into export channels. Kansas City no. 2 yellow sorghum rose 7-9 cents at 2.42-2.57 but fell 1.21-1.25 from 1986 and dropped 1.86 per hundred pounds from 1985. Texas high plains sorghum finished mixed, down 5 cents to up 3 cents at 2.75-3.00 per cwt.

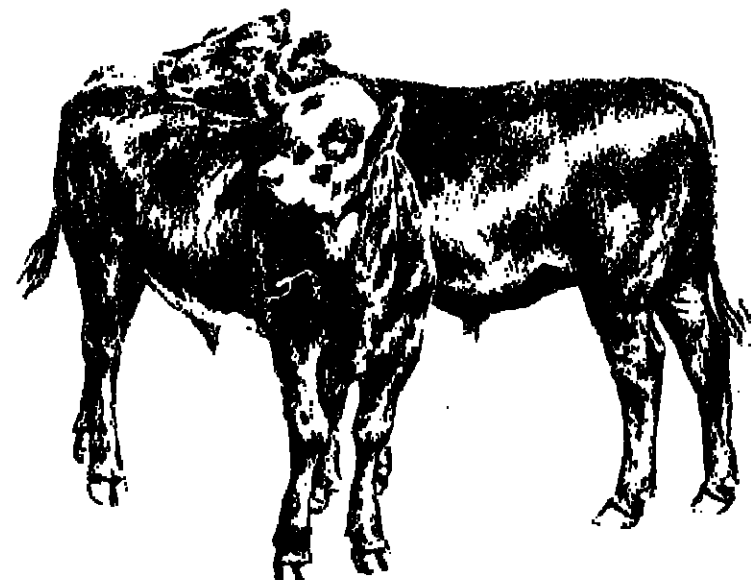

Oilseeds: Yellow soybean traded narrowly mixed as weaker oil markets and a prospectively larger Brazil soybean crop weighed against a stronger soybean meal market and expanded exports. Illinois processor soybean ranged 1 cent lower at 1 cent higher to 4.83-4.89, down 44-47 cents from last year and down 1.09-1.10 1/2 per bushel from 1985. Duluth sunflower seed advanced 10 cents at 8.95, down 95 cents from last year and 4.15 per hundred pounds below the comparable market in 1985.

Stuph & Thangs

It may make us a little bitter to recognize that had the matter concerned diets or cholesterol or heart disease or cancer it might have been a matter that got a bigger news play than it did. However, as we have pointed out many times this meeting and its conclusions should be pulled to the attention of our people in public office and especially those in Congress. At the present time both the Administration and the Congress are gingerly picking at the problems with our fur trade. What we need to do is point out to our public servants that our so-called trading partners are abusing our friendship, what there is of it, and as Teddy Roosevelt advised long ago "walk softly, but carry a Big Stick." We recognize that Congress and the Govt. is infested with a lot of clueless wonders who are deathly afraid they may hurt the feelings of some of our friends in Europe and Japan if we lay down some rules about closing our markets to them, unless they open their markets to us. If this simple adjustment throws 'em into a fit, we just ort to watch 'em have it and when their hysterics die down git down to dealing the cards in an open and above board fashion. We simply can't believe that if we lay down some simple rules of give and take, and make 'em stick, it is gonna mean the end of the world. This trade virus is just like a lot of other childish diseases. It may seem scary at first, but they'll git over it. Ever thine, The Editor.

P.S.: We noted where U.S. News and World Report magazine featured the fact that there are strong indications that lying has become such a widespread problem in these United States that hardly anyone believes hardly anyone anymore. Dunk says there are two types of people who say him up worse than almost any other and that is liars and thieves, since both these sins are rarely ever really necessary. If President Reagan and Congress really want to improve our society they ort to institute a special tax to create a huge building program to provide jail space for those liars and thieves who break the laws, especially the kind commonly known as white-collar crooks. We would bet a little that most of the honest citizens would ante up this kind of tax without a whimper! — Thassall, Brothers!

Letters to the Editor

February 14, 1987
Mr. Ted Gouldy, Publisher
The Weekly Livestock Reporter
Box 7655
Fort Worth TX 76111
Dr. Mr. Gouldy,
Would you be so kind as to publish the address of the Council that has to do with the spending of the money for promoting beef consumption. The James Garner spoke I have seen would not induce my dog to eat beef and now this Shepherd woman is quoted as not including beef in her diet. I only run about 47 cows, but I do not think this promotion will aid me and I would like to make application for return of my one dollar per head. Keep up the good work you and your staff are doing getting out the Reporter. I have subscribed for several years and plan to continue doing so. Very truly yours, and severely liable for the outstanding debt issued by the system.

Loans outstanding for the three banks and associations declined from $4.1 billion on December 31, 1985, to $3.5 billion at the end of 1986. Rogers attributed the loan volume decrease primarily to the adversity in the agricultural community and increased competition for agricultural loans.

"More and more farmers and ranchers are experiencing difficulty in their operations," Rogers said. "We are doing our best to work with farmers having problems."
The Texas District charged off almost $17 million in loans in 1986. The Federal Land Bank charged off $2.5 million or .10 percent of average
